We live in Yorkshire, on a farm in the country. The farmhouse is quite an old a building. It is about 250 years old. There aren't many houses near us. There is a small market in the village about 300 miles away, but we are over twenty miles from the nearest town. That can be difficult for shopping, but we love it here. It is very quiet, there is nearly no traffic and the view is wonderful. Our uncle's family, however, don't live in a house or a flat. They live on a houseboat. The boat looks small, but it is quite big inside. Apart from the bathroom, it only has one room, so they have to do everything there - eat, cook, sleep, and watch TV.

Good manners are a treasure to the people who possess them, as well as to the community they live in. Manners are taught, learnt, and passed from generation to generation.

Even hundreds of years ago, children were taught to behave responsibly. They learnt to respect seniority. When they passed an object to another person, they had to use both hands. When they entered a room, they had to bow and greet the oldest person first. Boys learnt to work hard to support their families. Girls learnt to do housework, and to take care of others. Loyalty and honesty were highly appreciated. When they made a mistake, they would not let another person be punished for it. That would be cowardly and mean. They were taught that families were b, and everybody should stick together in adversity. Fortunately, many of these values have been well preserved. They have contributed to making the unique Vietnamese culture, and strengthening our society.
